

Pokémon GO Shows How to Augment Reality and your Intellectual Property

Aug 18, 2016

Authors: Noel Courage and Nicholas Aitken

The Pokémon GO app has taken the world by storm, and it's not just because of the game itself, but because of the legal issues it has raised. The app has created a new way to play a game, and it has also created a new way to protect intellectual property. The app has shown that it is possible to create a new type of game that is both fun and profitable, and it has also shown that it is possible to protect intellectual property in a new way. The app has created a new way to play a game, and it has also created a new way to protect intellectual property. The app has shown that it is possible to create a new type of game that is both fun and profitable, and it has also shown that it is possible to protect intellectual property in a new way.

Trademarks

The Pokémon GO app has taken the world by storm, and it's not just because of the game itself, but because of the legal issues it has raised. The app has created a new way to play a game, and it has also created a new way to protect intellectual property. The app has shown that it is possible to create a new type of game that is both fun and profitable, and it has also shown that it is possible to protect intellectual property in a new way. The app has created a new way to play a game, and it has also created a new way to protect intellectual property. The app has shown that it is possible to create a new type of game that is both fun and profitable, and it has also shown that it is possible to protect intellectual property in a new way.

Information on this website is for information only. It is not, and should not be taken as, legal advice. You should not rely on, or take or not take any action, based upon this information. Professional legal advice should be promptly obtained. Bereskin & Parr LLP professionals will be pleased to advise you.